THE SAGA — 1955

Foreword

Seibert Hall

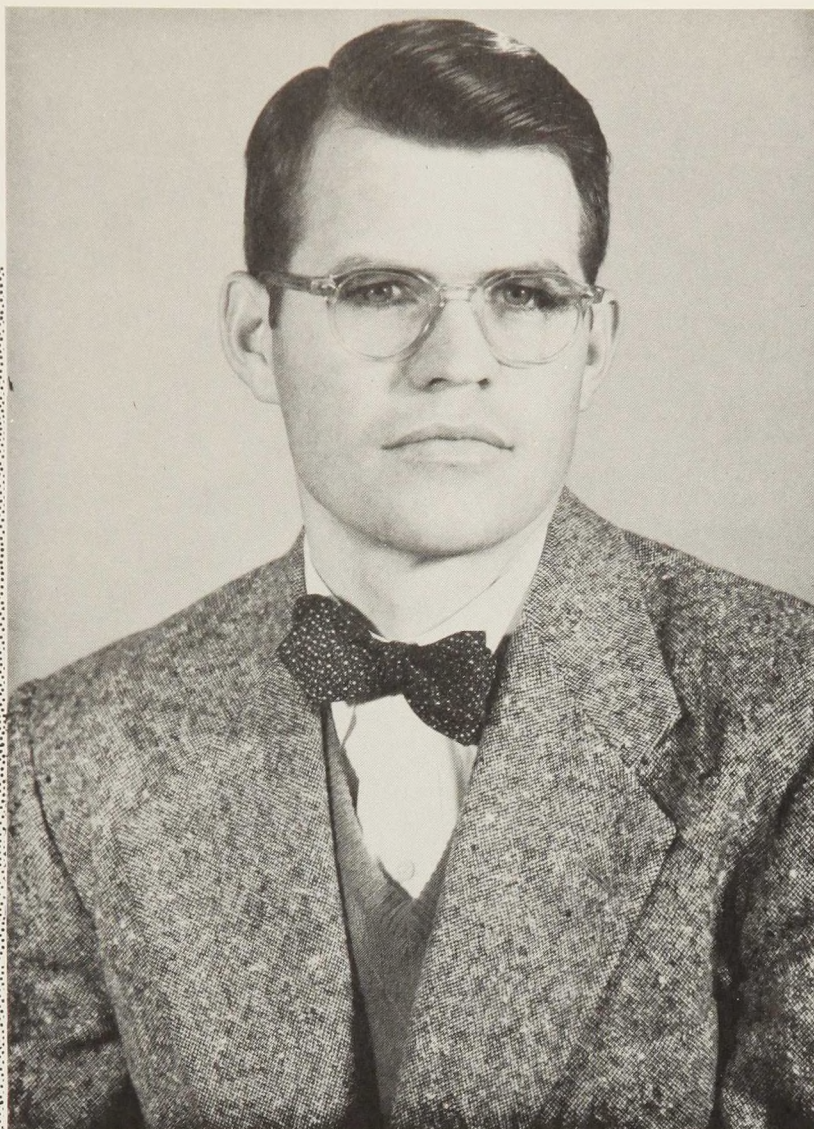

The classic halls that outline our campus site, engender many vivid memories of college life at historic Bloomfield. These buildings stand in solemn tribute to all those noble qualities of mind and spirit fostered by our institution.

We propose that there is more to an educational edifice than the roughshod rock and mortar that form the structure, for in its behalf the venerable hand of age confers the degree of dignity while the gnarly staff of truth ascends the highways of holiness.

So, it is in a spirit of reverence and respect that we reflect upon these weathered walls seeing ourselves as part of their heritage to mankind.

And thus, Seibert, Knox, Oakland and the rest are all ramparts of knowledge that still speak to us. A mere glimpse of their forms opens the casements of our eyes and steals to the archives of memory where stealthfully the obscure past is unveiled, disclosing to us again those moments that now make for our joy and peace.

MR. RALPH N. CALKINS

Before beginning to trace the contours spiraling up to the peak of another class consummation, let us pause momentarily to dedicate words of gratitude to a great man, Mr. Ralph N. Calkins has served Bloomfield College for the past six years, and since his appointment as Dean he has labored unceasingly in behalf of the student body.

As a parting tribute to Dean Calkins the Class of 1955 have not chosen to shower him with glittering eulogies; for although they would be appropriate, a rain of complements would strike him as pure flattery. So we have endeavored to capture the essence of his many merits and record them briefly as humility, love, justice, and wisdom. These qualities vibrate on the cords that make us common men, and ring to our hearts true refrains of compassionate living that swell from the very concert halls of heaven.

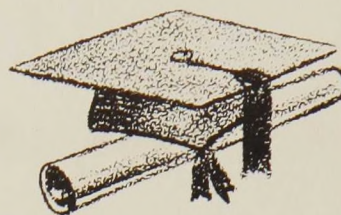

We, therefore, dedicate our farewell enterprise to you, Mr. Calkins, and with it this humble inscription, "To a man whose life is an overture to the eternal symphony of God."

Dedication —

Our President

It is with mixed emotions that the Staff and Faculty watch a class take their diplomas and launch out into the world. Time has flown so fast, we wonder whether in the four brief years we did all we could to prepare you for a life of worthwhile achievement. Your physical adequacy for healthy living was pretty much determined before you came to us. Whatever the degree of native intelligence with which the Creator endowed you, we, as an institution, dedicated to the cultivation of the things of the mind, have labored to stimulate you to intellectual growth. The test of our effectiveness as a college is your continued culture of the things of the mind after you leave these halls of learning. If your intellectual curiosity ever dies out, we have failed somehow. We hope that your associations with us and your classmates have made it easier for you to sympathetically understand other people and get along with them. Most of all we pray that the sense of moral and religious values to which Bloomfield is committed has so ingrained itself in the fibre of your soul that you will be able to face the hardest trials that await you with courage and faith. Long after we have departed these classrooms, we hope that the memories of your associations with each other and with us will afford you the same fondness we cherish of our own college associations.

Senior Officers

We, the Class of 1955 have endeavored to trace the three outstanding events of our history that molded so smoothly the spirit of the class.

The Freshman Variety Show in our first year was a success, not only in creating a class kinship, but, also, in greatly augmenting the class treasury.

The second noteworthy event centered around our Sophomore Splash Party at the Orange Y.M.C.A. The water was wet and inviting; its invigorating effect accounting for several dunked classmates.

Then, thirdly, our four outstanding class dances, provided many moments of relaxation and fellowship. Particularly do we recall the Aqua Ball. Joining forces with the Sophomore's we created the semblance of a marine paradise.

To complete this sketch we might appropriately close with a vote of thanks of our capable Presidents: Bill Heimach, Alick Kennedy and Art Stevens.

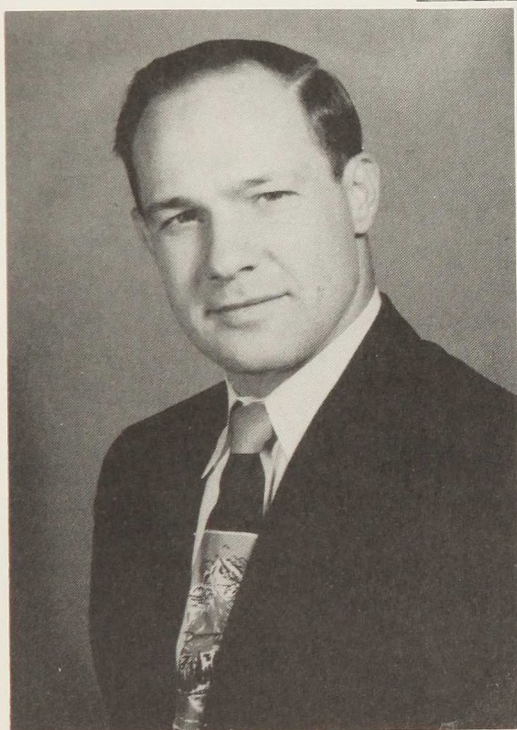

Class Officers - Alick Kennedy, Treasurer; Jack Kiefer, Vice President; Art Stevens, President; Mr. John Furtney, Faculty Advisor; Gerry Stewart, Secretary.

B.C.S.A.

RICHARD COONRADT
B.C.S.A. President

The Bloomfield College Student Association has always occupied a position of paramount importance in the conduct of student affairs. Under the fine leadership this year of its conscientious President, Dick Coonradt, the rare and lofty ideals invested in this body have been admirably sustained and nurtured. In fulfilling its function every year, the B.C.S.A. promotes the social aspects of the student's career: it sponsors campus organizations, publications, and athletics; it provides such attractions as dances, variety shows and special formal occasions; and it endeavors to encourage between faculty and student that unique attitude of Christian understanding which Bloomfield College fosters with pride.

The college yearbook, the Bloomfield SAGA, has sought to recapture the distant past, bringing it into focus once again so that one can reminisce and reconstruct those memorable days of yesteryear. A small college like Bloomfield must always place the emphasis of such an important enterprise as the SAGA on quality and not quantity. This year, as in the past, the staff has aspired to meet this standard. It is hoped that in these pages are represented those aspects of Bloomfield-in which the reader will find the most solace and delight-both this year and in time to come.

THIRD ROW: Mr. A. Tron, William Sutherland, Mr. R. Craw, William Gow.

Choir

MR. RUSSELL E. HAYTON
Director of Music

Much of the beauty of the special programs at Bloomfield is due to our college choir, under the able direction of Mr. Russell Hayton. The choir forms an important part of our college life, singing in chapel from time to time, at Convocations, Graduations and the other special programs of the college. A common place of fellowship for faculty, seminary, and college; the Choir affords an excellent opportunity for those so desiring - to sing - to the Glory of God.

The college newspaper, the Bloomfield MINUTEMAN, authorized by the B.C.S.A. seeks to inform the student body of all newsworthy campus events. Furthermore, it provides an immediate outlet for the expression of student sentiment in matters of which the students desire to be heard. This year the MINUTEMAN, edited by John Fyfe, has followed the traditional canons of newspaper reporting by bringing to the fore the thoughts and ideas that circulated below the campus surface. Bloomfield College is proud of its free lance newspaper and holds its pioneering policies in the highest esteem.

"Red" Chaves, M.C., welcomes you to the B.C.S.A. Varieties.

"On stage, for Country Style'!"

"Oh, you kid!" in the "Roaring Twenties."

The chorus sings "Cindy."

Gladys Ott, Bill Gow, and Ruth Story, the show's soloists.

The Variety Show was originally organized by the Class of '55 during its Freshmen year at Bloomfield College. Under the leadership of Bill Heimach and Red Chaves, the show was such a smashing success that the class decided to turn the show over to the sponsorship of the Student Association in the following years, in order that the entire student body might benefit from it. Subsequently the students and their association have enjoyed three entertaining and profitable performances in 1953, 1954 and 1955. The proceeds have been a great asset implementing several particular needs of the college. However, the Variety Show will be remembered most for the fun and fellowship it contributed to the Bloomfield program.

Business Club

Among the most well attended activities of life at Bloomfield are its dances. Here, at the Harvest Hop of 1955, are some of the students and their dates enjoying the fun and fellowship typical of Bloomfield affairs.

Let's Dance!

Decorations add much to the success of a dance. Here are Bea Brautigam, Dolly Macaulay, Ray Belcher, and Don Milloy, hanging up the moon.

After a "Bunny Hop" or a "Virginia Reel" it's nice to sit down and enjoy some refreshments.
